SCOUT VILLAGE IS MEN'S HOPE

Dream Will be Fulfilled at Chautauqua When W. E. Hopkins Boy Scout Commissioner Will Come.

WILL LIVE IN TENT ALL WEEK

Will Teach Boys Camp Life—How to Tie Horse to Hole in Ground.

That the dream of the boys' committee of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which is still in existence—a Boy Scout village at the Rush county chautauqua—will be fulfilled seems probable at this time since a man who is versed in the organization of the Boy Scouts of America work has been employed to stay at the chautauqua this year and inform the boys on all of the beauties of Boy Scout work.

W. E. Hopkins, scout commissioner of the West Pullman local council of Chicago, an experienced man in Boy Scout work who has been engaged in the organization of Boy Scout councils and who knows the trenchant principles of the great organization which has benefited so many youthful Americans, is the man who has been engaged by the association. He will come Monday morning, August fifth, the second day of the chautauqua, and will remain throughout the week.

At a meeting of the boys' committee last evening at the home of Ralph Payne, the chairman of the committee, plans were discussed for the Boy Scout village which it is hoped will become a reality at this year's chautauqua.

It is intended to persuade as many boys as possible between the ages of twelve and eighteen to camp on the chautauqua grounds this year and participate in the Boy Scout activities. The opportunity for which the Rushville friends of boys have been awaiting for a long time is at hand. And they expect to make the best of it.

W. E. Hopkins will live in a tent on the chautauqua grounds, and he hopes that the Boy Scouts will follow his example. He carries with him his own camp equipment such as cooking utensils and other things that are necessary in camp life.

With these Mr. Hopkins teaches the boys the rudiments of camp life. He teaches the boys how to be able to cook their meals while in camp, how to build fires properly and numerous other methods that have been evolved to delight the boy and interest him in an outdoor, wholesome life.

By the last of the week the scout commissioner hopes to have the boys far enough advanced so that he can take them through some camp maneuvers. He will work with the boys between programs so as not to interfere with the chautauqua.

Among the many interesting and valuable things which the scout commissioner will teach will be the method to use in starting a fire with damp wood and without matches. He will also show how to tie a horse to a hole in the ground so that it can not get away. He will exemplify the Boy Scout's first aid to the injured, and explain the many practical things which may be done in case of an accident which might some day help a boy to save his comrade's life.

Scout Commissioner Hopkins has had a long experience in the work of organizing and training Boy Scouts and is considered the best man in this department which the Republican

NUMBER OF DOGS POISONED

Wholesale Slaughter Occurred in the Northwest Part of City.

A wholesale poisoning of dogs occurred last night in the northwest part of the city. Dogs belonging to Dr. Charles Green, James Anderson, Earl Kitchen and Miss Meta Priest were found dead this morning. It is supposed that the dogs were poisoned by the same person. It is not known who the guilty party is, but the police have a good idea. All of the dogs were pets and are not known to ever have harmed anyone.

COULD TELL WHERE MAUDE ROGERS IS

Connersville Girls Who Went to Indianapolis With Local Woman Said to Know Whereabouts.

DESCRIPTION SENT TO POLICE

The Connersville Examiner says that the two Connersville girls who left with Mrs. Maude Rogers of this city two weeks ago and who have returned home could tell something about the whereabouts of Mrs. Rogers if they were so disposed. They registered under assumed names in an Indianapolis hotel and were later forced to give their true names to avoid trouble. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Doughty, parents of Mrs. Rogers, have sent photographs and descriptions of Mrs. Rogers to the police of many cities in an effort to locate her.

MRS. PARKER FOUND IN CONNERSVILLE

Woman Wanted Here For Deserting Children Located There and Will be Brought Back.

Chief McAllister left for Connersville this afternoon in answer to a telephone call from Chief Lewis of that city stating that he had located Mrs. Leora Parker, wife of Charles Parker, south of the city, who is wanted here on the charge of deserting her children. Mrs. Parker will be tried before Mayor Black.

It developed Monday in police court when Parker was brought up for carrying concealed weapons, that his wife had left him, deserting the children. The police promised to aid him and Mrs. Parker was traced to Connersville. The warrant for her arrest was issued this morning and Chief Lewis was soon on the job.

LONG ILLNESS IS FATAL

Infant Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiesbach Dies.

Philomena Wiesbach, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiesbach, died this morning at 4 o'clock at their home near Raleigh. She had been ill for some time suffering with tuberculosis of the bowels. Her parents and one brother survive. The funeral services will be held Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the Catholic church, conducted by the Rev. Michael Lyons. Burial will take place in Calvary cemetery.

HORSE IN MIRE FOR TWO DAYS

Alleged Cruelty Case Reported to Police But Investigation Showed it Had Been Killed.

BELONGED TO PAUL DANNA

Animal Found in Mud North of C. H. D. Bridge—Unable to Get Free.

It was reported to the police this morning that a horse belonging to Paul Danna, proprietor of a fruit store in North Main street, was mired in the mud on the Schantz farm, north of the C. H. & D. bridge. The report conveyed to the police was that the horse had been in the mire for two days and no effort was being made to get it out.

Chief McAllister and Squire Kratzer visited the scene and found that the horse had been shot. The horse had been in the Schantz pasture and wandered across the river, north of the C. H. & D. bridge and got in the mire. It struggled but could not get out. The man at the pump station was the first to notice the horse. This was Thursday morning. It is understood that no effort was made to get the horse out until last evening and then the animal was so weak that it could not help itself and the work was in vain. The horse was then killed by Ed Schantz.

According to Mr. Danna, the owner, the animal was old and had not been used for about two months. He stated that it was practically worthless. The police talked some of prosecuting Mr. Danna for cruelty to animals but at a late hour nothing had been done. It was first reported that the horse had been in the mire for two days and no effort made to free it, but Mr. Danna denies this and states that he did all he could. The mire in which the horse was found is about three feet deep and is a very treacherous place.

WILL ESTABLISH WALKING RECORD

Pauline Felts and Rose Brock Expected to Hike to Indianapolis in 12 Hours.

WILL LEAVE EARLY SUNDAY

All local records for long distance walking are expected to be broken tomorrow when two Rushville young women will attempt to walk to Indianapolis. The young women are Rose Brock, local Western Union Telegraph operator and Pauline Felts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Felts of North Perkins street. They expect to leave tomorrow morning at three o'clock on the long "hike" and hope to be in Indianapolis by three o'clock in the afternoon.

The two girls have walked considerable, but never started on a trip of this distance. Recently Miss Felts walked to Connersville. The only thing bothering them is how to avoid the police in Indianapolis and explain how they happened to make the hike. "Why, sure, we expect to get all the way," said Miss Brock today in answer to a question as to how far they expected to get.

WEATHER.

Unsettled with showers tonight or Sunday. Warmer tonight in north and central portion.

FIRST WHEAT IS VERY POOR GRADE

Load From James Miller's Farm Near New Salem Tests Only 54 Pounds to Bushel.

GRADE IS BELOW AVERAGE

New Grain is in Good Condition But Quality is Poor—Others Start Monday.

The first wheat of the 1912 crop was received in Rushville this morning at the C. W. Hinkle & Company elevator. It tests very poorly, and added proof of recent assertions that this year's crop is no good. Grain men are convinced that the stories that have been told about the failure of the wheat crop are not myths.

The first load of wheat to be threshed in Rush county this year came from the James Miller farm near New Salem. It was in good condition but is not what could be called good wheat by any means.

The first wheat tested only fifty-four pounds to the bushel. This is far below the average for Rush county. It is the general rule that wheat raised in Rush county tests about fifty-eight pounds to the bushel. This places it in the second grade.

There has been some first grade wheat raised in this county in past years. It should show a test of sixty pounds to the bushel. Wheat that tests that well is a very uncommon thing here, however.

New wheat is bringing ninety-five cents on the local market now, and grain men say it may go higher because of the scarcity of the crop generally. New wheat does not generally start this high.

Threshing will begin in earnest all over Rush county Monday. A number of threshing companies prepared today to commence Monday. Machines were set and everything was put in readiness. The company which includes the county poor asylum farm will begin Monday.

MANY ALLEYS ARE FILLED WITH WEEDS

Property Owners Call Attention to the Fact That City is Not Doing Its Share.

UNSIGHTLY AND UNHEALTHY

Many property owners in Rushville are complaining about the weeds in the alleys in Rushville. It is said that there are some alleys in Rushville in which the weeds are as tall as the average man. The weather for the last few weeks has been especially favorable for the growth of weeds, and they have sprung up in every conceivable place.

This morning a property owner pointed out that the city compels real estate owners to cut the weeds on their property but does not keep up its share. Health authorities everywhere realize that weeds are unhealthy. It is a well known fact, too, that where weeds are allowed to exist the hay fever ailment is always more common. That weeds are unsightly and do not contribute anything toward the beauty of a city is not the least important of the arguments against them.

Friends wishing to view the remains of George Altmyer can call this evening or in the morning.

BOY AND HORSE COLLIDE

Maurice Nolan Suffers Slight Injuries at Crowded Corner.

Maurice Nolan, employed at Bliss & Cowing, while riding a bicycle, collided with Will Price's horse at the corner of Main and Second streets this afternoon. Both were going rather fast, and witnesses to the accident marveled that young Nolan was not badly hurt. He sustained a few slight bruises. The bicycle was only slightly damaged. A boy was driving the horse.

FAYETTE COUNTY NOT THE ONLY ONE

Connersville News Learns That Rush County, Too, is Using Road Drag to Advantage.

GOOD ROADS DAY THERE JULY 29

"Fayette county is not the only place in the State that is interested in road drags or the modern methods of highway maintenance," says the Connersville News, and then it reprints the article from the Daily Republican concerning the road between Five Points and Rushville which Hal Green has kept in such fine condition with the use of the road drag.

The Connersville News adds: "The experience thus detailed in the Rushville exchange are similar to the results obtained here where the drags have been used. It is expected that a number of Rush county good roads enthusiasts will be present at the Good Roads Day to be held here July 29, and that their presence, and perhaps their words also, will add both to the pleasure and the profit of that occasion."

SAYS HUSBAND MADE HER WORK IN FIELD

Cora Gard, in Divorce Suit Also Asserts he Taunted Her About His Intimacy With a Woman.

SHE DEMANDS $1,000 ALIMONY

Cora B. Gard's martial woes of two years' duration are recited in a divorce complaint filed against her husband, James Gard in circuit court today. She demands a thousand dollars alimony. Mrs. Gard charges that James was false to his martial duties and visited Mary Sherwood frequently both night and day. To add to this outrageous action, the plaintiff says her husband taunted and aggravated her by referring to his intimacy with Mary Sherwood.

Mrs. Gard says her husband struck and kicked her, and threatened to do her injury if she did not leave home. She complains that his actions became so unbearable that she had to leave home. Gard accused his wife of being untrue, the complaint says, and compelled her to work in the garden and the fields. When she substituted as a teacher, Mrs. Gard says, he collected the pay and kept it. She asserts that her health was broken during the two years she lived with him, December 24, 1906 to April 30, 1908.

BOOSTING BOOM FOR W. BOSSERT

Friends of Liberty Attorney Believe He's Man to Lead Republicans of Sixth District.

HIS NAME TO BE PRESENTED

Union County Believes That it is Entitled to Something—Basis For Plea.

That Walter F. Bossert, a young and able lawyer of Liberty, is to be a contender for the Republican nomination for congress in the Sixth district, is evidenced by the agitation that is being made by his friends. A man who signs his name "Fidelis of Liberty, Ind." contributes the following:

With the Republican congressional convention for the Sixth Indiana district close at hand Union county will present the name of one of her young leading citizens as a candidate. Walter F. Bossert of this place, is a young lawyer of marked ability, who has already won an enviable position in his practice. In giving this publicity to him without solicitation on his part for this nomination I feel that there are vital reasons why the people of the district should carefully consider his worth, which can be substantiated by all who know him. The position he stands in as to being a Republican and the Republicans of this, Union, county are entitled to name the next Republican congressman from this district.

Mr. Bossert has been a lifelong Republican, loyal to the party. He believes the party's future is bright with the promise of being and doing public service, which will bring great good to the entire people. He has kept himself free from all alliances with political henchmen and bosses, has no enemies to placate; no friends to promise reward further than faithful performance of duty. Clear and keen sighted, a student of economy and standing without any entanglements of any kind within the party, no one can come nearer uniting the conflicting elements now pervading the Republican party of this district than Walter F. Bossert.

Union county Republicans have always been loyal to their party on all great questions, on all occasions supporting for congress every candidate, no matter from what county he may have come, with a united vote, as near or nearer a full vote than any other county in the district. Because of his fitness, his hands clean from mixing with either faction within the party, with a firmness to stand on the platform that the convention may see fit to name and carry out its principles with promptness and courage, and the claim that Union county has on the rest of the district to the nominee (never having had a State or national representative) it is asked that the Republicans of the Sixth district give Mr. Bossert's name their most earnest consideration.

ONE MAN IN POLICE COURT

John Leonard Went to Jail For Eleven Days.

John Leonard was fined one dollar and costs this morning by Mayor Black for intoxication and in default went to jail for eleven days. Leonard stated that his home was in Indianapolis and that he stopped off here while enroute to Cincinnati. He was found last evening in North Harrison street and was hauled to jail in a motor truck. The arrest was made by Policeman Walker.

INQUIRY HINTS AT EXCESSIVE RATESInterstate Commerce Commission Starts New Probe.

Washington, July 20.—An important investigation involving the United States Steel corporation has been ordered by the interstate commerce commission. The committee's inquiry will be into the rates, practices, rules and regulations governing the transportation of cement, iron ore, iron, steel and their products. Inasmuch as iron ore, iron and steel constitute a large part of the traffic on many railroads, the importance of the investigation is apparent. The object of the committee's move will be to determine if the rates are excessive and to ascertain the relations that exist between the railroads in the United States east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac, and corporations engaged in mining and producing iron and steel cement. The sweeping character of the proceedings is indicated by the fact that 300 railroads are named as defendants.

The United States Steel corporation's control over certain railroads which carry its ore from mines to the water front has long been the cause of complaint by independent producers. The commission has not yet fixed a date to begin the investigation.

THE TOTAL COST OF PHILIPPINES

More Than Paying for Themselves, Says President.

A CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRY

In Response to the Same President Taft Says That in All Items Except the Increased Cost to the Army and Navy on Their Account, the Philippine Islands Actually Show Balance in Their Favor.

Washington, July 20.—The impression that has existed in many minds that the acquisition, retention and upkeep of the Philippines has been a heavy burden on the American taxpayers has been dispelled by President Taft. In response to a resolution adopted by the house calling for a statement of the total cost of the Philippines, the president sent to the house a statement which showed the islands actually paid for themselves with the balance in their favor in all items except the increased cost to the army and navy on their account. The cost, he said, could not be determined. He holds it impossible to determine what part of the cost of the support of the army and navy is due to the Philippines, since the United States has maintained an Asiatic station for many years, and doubtless would have continued this station even though there had been no war with Spain.

"The militia forces now in the islands would have been supported at home were they not in the Philippines. At least two occasions their presence there has resulted in a saving to the United States in the cost of sending troops to China for the protection of American interests.

VACATION ENDED

Colonel "Wireless" Wilson Had to Go Back to the Tombs.

New York, July 20.—Colonel Christopher Columbus Wilson, head of the United Wireless Telegraph company and three-year termier at the Atlanta federal prison, who has been roaming around his old haunts in New York since July 1, was taken back to the Tombs last night by his keeper, C. E. Shea, and now occupies his former cell.

The colonel spent an interesting day downtown in company with Shea. He went to Broad street, where he was recognized by an acquaintance on the edge of the curb market. The colonel's acquaintance tapped him on the shoulder and said: "It's a long way from Atlanta to New York, isn't it?" "What's the use of talking about unpleasant things?" replied Wilson. "How long are you going to stay in New York?"

"I don't really know," returned Wilson. "I suppose they want me to testify in bankruptcy proceedings."

Wilson and Shea went to the federal building and there had a talk with Marshal Henkel.

It was whispered that Shea and Wilson explained to the marshal that the delay in getting back to the Tombs was due principally to a desire to find certain papers which the court had called for in the bankruptcy proceedings.

BURIED UNDER WRECK

Fog Causes Fatal Automobile Accident Near Rensselaer.

Rensselaer, Ind., July 20.—While driving his automobile at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, R. W. Baradach, stock promoter of the Federal Life Insurance company of Chicago, was instantly killed here when the automobile was enveloped in a fog, causing Baradach to lose control of the machine.

The machine ran into a ditch, turning a complete somersault and burying him under the wreck.

Worse Than Anarchist.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 20.—With Lincoln Steffens on the stand yesterday's session of the Darrow trial was given over largely to an exposition by Steffens of the philosophical and economic side of the capital and labor question as he views it. Asked if he was not an anarchist, Steffens said: "I am not an anarchist; I am worse. I believe in Christianity."

They May Patch It Up.

London, July 20.—The fact that the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, the latter formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt, have met, shaken hands and agreed to recognize each other whenever they meet has set society to speculating as to whether now that the ice has been broken, a permanent reconciliation is not imminent.

A $12,000 Jewel Robbery.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 20.—The congressional delegation reached Sea Girt this afternoon. Speaker Clark headed the Democrats and made a speech to the nominee on behalf of the men in the lower house. The visitors brought their own food with them, it having been held by them to be impracticable for the large crowd to take luncheon at the "Little White House." About 200 are present.

Governor Wilson's campaign committee had its second meeting at Spring Lake yesterday and adjourned to meet Monday in New York city. The meeting was devoted mainly to a discussion of organization, although some names were mentioned. For vice chairman there seemed to be but one name at that time, and that was William G. McAdoo, who does not want the job and will not take it unless the governor asks him to do so.

There were four names mentioned for treasurer: Herman Ridder, the present incumbent; Nathan Straus, Henry Morganthau and John D. Crimmins.

MORE DETAILS ARE REVEALED

Shapiro, Driver of Murder Car,
Talks Freely.

ASTONISHING INFORMATION

It Was Apparent to the Man Who Drove the Car Used by the Killers That the Men Who Shot Down Herman Rosenthal in the Presence of Several Policemen Had No Fear of the Consequences of Their Act.

New York, July 20.—The hunt for the men who murdered Herman Rosenthal to prevent him giving to the district attorney evidence that would have put crooked policemen in danger of Sing Sing was taken up by Burns detectives. And after they questioned William Shapiro, driver of the car used by the killers, and conferred with the district attorney, they went to work believing that Rosenthal was slain by a gang that was procured by Jack Rose with the knowledge or the approval of a policeman.

From Shapiro, who is trying to save himself, they secured the most astonishing information yet obtained. Shapiro says now that the assassination was a leisurely affair, that the killers did not leap desperately at their work at all, and that they lounged in front of the Metropole before and after they pistolled Rosenthal, with no apparent fear of arrest.

The gray car's owner cursed his passengers for dragging him into the murder and sat down and told in detail all that he professes to know about the murder. He was pressed hard to clear up certain points that have been only vaguely referred to. But Shapiro, remembering the threats made by Rosenthal's murderers, that they would kill him, threw himself altogether upon the protection of the district attorney and swore that he was walking the straight line of truth.

"I am innocent, so help me God," he said, with his face working with emotion. "I had no more idea that my car was going to be used for murder than I thought I was going to jump in the East river."

BLOWS AVERTED

Tennessee Member and Illinois Member Enliven Congressional Debate.

Washington, July 20.—A fist fight on the floor of the house was averted by an abrupt motion for adjournment. The near combatants were Representative Austin of Tennessee and Representative Rainey of Illinois. These two members have a grudge based on objections made by Mr. Rainey to bills in which Mr. Austin was interested and counter-objections made by Mr. Austin. The bills in question proposed the erection of dams over Tennessee rivers. Mr. Austin arose to a question of personal privilege. He stated that if the "gentleman" from Illinois is really a gentleman, he ought to be willing to give fair consideration to bills presented to the house. Mr. Rainey replied that he had given some attention to the affairs of the water power trust and that he had reached the conclusion that the bills presented by Mr. Austin would benefit the combine to the extent of about $25,000,000 a year. Mr. Austin leaped to his feet with a hot retort and moved toward Mr. Rainey in a militant manner. It was at this point that Representative Foster of Illinois moved to adjourn and the motion was carried.

Spent Too Much Money on Election.

Washington, July 20.—By strict party vote the house elections committee voted to unseat Representative Theron E. Catlin of St. Louis, Republican, and to seat former Representative Patrick Gill, Democrat. Catlin's campaign expenses were so great that the committee held his election to have been corrupt. It also held that Gill would have been elected but for the use of money by Catlin's managers.

What It Cost to Discover America.

Madrid, July 20.—Ledgers recently discovered at Palos, Spain, contain interesting facts concerning the outlay made by Christopher Columbus on his expedition to the new world. The armament of the little fleet cost 14,000 pesetas. The personal expenses of Columbus and his officers were about 2,000 pesetas, and 6 pesetas a month sufficed for the crew, a sum total of about $7,200.

JUDGE STILL HAS THE $50

Condition Competitors Did Not Seem to Notice Went With Offer of Prize.

The walking craze of a few years ago gave a well-known sporting man an opportunity which he could not resist taking advantage of. He had hand-bills widely distributed on which was stated:

"A Great Crosby gentleman will give $50 to the man, woman or child who first succeeds in doing the following task: To walk from the Pierhead (Liverpool) to Crosby village. There each competitor must buy a meat pie and walk around the Big Stone and eat it."

About a hundred entries were re-ceived, and the walk took place on Whit Monday. Much excitement pre-vailed and a great cheer rose as a local pedestrian was seen leading the rest of the crowd. His meat pie was soon eaten as he walked round the stone, and he went to the judge for the $50.

"Why," exclaimed the judge, "I didn't think you could have done it. The stone seemed too hard to eat."

"What's that got to do with it?" asked the ped.

"Everything to do with it," answer-ed the judge, "and nobody gets the $50 till they do."—London Tit-Bits.

Mrs. M. A. McLaughlin, 512 Jay St., LaCrosse, Wis., writes that she suffered all kinds of pains in her back and hips on account of kidney trouble and rheumatism. "I got some Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them for a few days there was a wonderful change in my case, for the pain entirely left my back and hips and I am thankful there is such a medicine as Foley Kidney Pills." WARNS AGAINST DRUG REMEDIES

State Health Board Chemist Says Parents Should be Guided by Label on Bottle.

NAMES THINGS TO BE AVOIDED

Declares Child May be Made a Drug Fiend if Precaution is not Taken.

Parents who these days dose their children with drug store "remedies" which are likely to lead to drug-forming habits, should be held strictly accountable for results, says Will D. McAbee, drug chemist in the food and drug laboratory of the state board of health. McAbee has com-pleted the examination of several dozen samples of patented and other "remedies" sold in the average drug store, the purpose of the examina-tion being to ascertain whether the goods were labeled according to con-tent.

"The United States government re-quires the label to set out the ingre-dients," said McAbee, "and the state law makes a similar requirement. Under the federal and state inspec-tion the druggists and drug manu-facturers have, with a few excep-tions, learned to label their products properly. The federal inspectors re-port but little violation of the law, as the manufacturers and dealers have learned the government is tireless in its following up the law violators. I should say 99 per cent. of the cures, remedies, etc., are legally labeled, ac-cording to our examinations.

"The trouble with the average parent is either that he does not read the label on the concoction purchas-ed, or doesn't pay any attention to it. The labels usually have the contents set out in small type, and thus at-tention is not especially attracted to it. In the drugs we have examined, the labels declare the concoctions contain codine sulphate, morphine sulphate, opium, morphine acetate, heroin, and other drugs, all equally likely to lead to the habit of drug using. These are found in remedies for coughs, colds, stomach and bowel trouble, headaches neural-gia and the like.

"In the long list of examinations we have made, we have found chloro-form in almost every sample. Chloro-form elads to the choloform habit, about which there has been little said, but which is widespread. There are cholorform fiends, the same as opium and morphine fiends, and I suppose as many.

"One of the old-time 'remedies' which still is used extensively, with but few parents knowing its contents, is a standard preparation, controlled as to ingredients by a United States standard. It contains, when made according to the standard, 1.9 grains of opium to the fluid ounce, which contain .22 grain of morphine. The medicine is given children for stom-ach or bowel trouble, and its effect is that the opium deadens the ends of the sensory nerves leading from the seat of trouble, and the pain is de-stroyed without the 'remedy' contri-buting anything toward alleviating the condition causing the pain. Thus nature's danger signal is destroyed, and the patient left wholly to chance. Another, which was formerly a pat-ent medicine, but is now manu-factured by druggists since the patent expired, is a 'remedy' of like nature. It contains, according to standard, 1.5 grains of morphine to the fluid ounce. One Indianapolis physician tells of a death caused by the use of the stuff.

"A drug found often in the so-called 'remedies' is cannabiz indica, or extract of hemp. This is the same drug that used to be, and is yet, sought extensively in East India by the drug users. In America the hemp from which it is produced is grown chiefly in Kentucky."

H. E. Barnard, chief chemist of the state board of health, learned, when west, he said, that Utah has a law which provides for state imprison-ment for any person selling cocaine, morphine or similar drugs except as prescribed by law. Five-years is the minimum term, he said. A result has been, he said, the regulation to a re-markable degree of the illegal sale of such drugs in that state.

"In Indiana," said Mr. Barnard, "we usually fine the offending sales-man $10 and costs and an obliging court usually remits the fine. It will be difficult to get any place under such conditions."

PLANS CLUBS FOR RURAL SCHOOLS

Government Will Co-Operate With Purdue University in Placing Organizers in Field.

TO ARRANGE FOR SPECIAL WORK

Indiana is First State to be Honored By United States in Under-taking Work.

That the agricultural extension de-partment of Purdue University in co-operation with the United States department of agriculture will short-ly put into the field in Indiana an ex-pert organizer of boys and girls' clubs in the rural schools of the state is the announcement made by Pro-fessor George I. Christie, superin-tendent of that department at Pur-due. Indiana is the first state to be honored by the government in under-taking this work, and some benefi-cial results are expected.

The United States department of agriculture has found Indiana to be far ahead of other states in the or-ganization of these boys and girls' clubs, and regards these clubs as one of the most important moves toward interesting young people in agricul-ture and keeping them on the farms. Three other states, Iowa, South Da-kota and West Virginia are to fol-low Indiana in the government's se-lection of states for this new branch of educational work.

The organizer, who will begin his work September 1, will be in the em-ploy of both the government and of Purdue university, and will work in all parts of Indiana, organizing the boys and girls of every country school for the purpose of stimulating interest in agriculture and its allied subjects, as well as in home making and household work for the girls. The agricultural extension depart-ment of Purdue has already organized such clubs in thirty-five counties of the state, and more than ten thou-sand boys and girls are already en-rolled. This is far more than any other state can boast of.

Indiana is regarded as the pioneer in this work, and Professor George I. Christie has directed practically all of the work thus far. The organizer will be paid by the United States government and by Purdue, and it will be his work to keep in close touch with the rural schools and work through them in the organiza-tion of the clubs. He will have the assistance of the farmers' institutes in all the counties.

Purdue's selection as the first state university to take up the gov-ernment work of organizing clubs is not the only honor that the United States department of agriculture has paid the local institution. Professor Christie was requested by the gov-ernment recently to prepare a publi-cation on the subject of educational contests for young and older people engaged in agriculture. Professor Christie has completed this work and the department or agriculture will is-sue it as an official publication. It will be sent to every state and to ev-ery civilized country in the world. The book will contain a list of more than one hundred educational con-tests for use at county fairs, farm-ers' institutes, short courses for farmers and all kinds of gatherings for farmers and their wives, sons and daughters. The different kinds of contests are described and rules given for the regulation of each contest. These include competitive crop grow-ing, butter making, bread making, gardening, house panning, corn judging, keeping of household ac-counts and many other kinds of con-tests for boys and girls, men and women.

O. H. Benson, of the United States department of agriculture, visited Purdue and addressed the Indiana school teachers attending the sum-mer school, on the subject of boys' and girls' club work throughout the United States. He described the work in the south and told his hear-ers that Indiana was ahead of all other states in this work. He paid a high tribute to Purdue's work in ag-riculture in Indiana and said it was productive of good to all classes, not alone to the farmer, but to the city man who must depend.

"Fifty per cent. of the people of this world," said Mr. Benson to the teachers, "go to bed hungry every evening and this fact is due to the consumption of food being greater than the production." He made an appeals to the teachers to interest the young people in the rural districts in up-to-date farming. "The schools," he added, "are the only direct way of getting to the children and the school must do this work.

"The young man should not be al-lowed to feel that the farm depends only on his father. He should be made to take a part in making it a success. One-half of the children who leave the farm do so under the persuasion of their parents, who believe there are greater things in store for their sons and daughters in the city than in the country. The larger percentage of boys and girls who leave the farm to go to the city to make a fortune are failures. The farm can be made at-tractive to the young people only by employing modern, scientific methods. Half of the world's products are wasted each year by improper hand-ling or growth. With the aid of the teacher it is the aim to enluse the boy or girl with the work of the farm and raise the standard of production on the farm."

HOT WEATHER ADVICE.

Here is a seasonable advice by a physician: As the hot, dry days of summer approach it is well as far as possible, to adjust your manner of living and dressing to the increasing temperature.

Wear loose and light underclothing with easily removed, or changed, outer garments; in this way you may with little trouble keep the sur-face of the body at a comparatively even temperature, only slightly higher than the surrounding atmosphere.

Reduce the total amount of food eaten, substituting fruit and green vegetables for pastry, pudding, and green vegetables for pastries, pud-dings, and over sweet or starchy foods. Have chicken, fish and eggs take the place of the heavier beef, pork and mutton. Abstain entirely from, ale and porter, and if it is not too great a hardship from all alco-holic drinks; but should some form of alcoholic beverage appear im-perative, use the light sour wines and spirituous liquors only in the smallest quantities and always largely diluted with plain or aerated water.

Don't drink large draughts of any iced drink; but take plenty of pure cold water in small quantities at a time.

Let your breakfast be a fairly hearty meal, including fruit, cereal and eggs, but no meat. The midday meal should, however, be exceedingly light, and the evening repast if taken after or about sundown, may be made a "square meal" within the general summer limitations.

Don't expose yourself unnecessarily to the direct rays of the sun be-tween the hours of 12 and 3 but al-ways contrive to have an abundance of fresh outdoor air.

Don't study the thermometer and fret over weather conditions, or, for that matter, it is better not to allow yourself to fret over anything, but try to cultivate a jolly, rather frivolous frame of mind, leaving hard thinking, or heavy reading for the cooler days of fall and winter.

Should you be able to carry out the above advice you can remain at your home in the city with much greater comfort and probably better health than you will be able to nd at the average summer resort.

Mrs. Lela Love, wife of Wiley Love, a farmer living near Covenaa, Ga., says: "I have taken Foley Kid-ney Pills and find them to be all you claim for them. They gave me al-most instant relief when my kidneys were sluggish and inactive. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers from kidney troubles." F. R. Johnson & Co.

Free Trade Debauch.

The Democratic platform adopted at Baltimore begins with a strikeout declaration for free trade, and the assertion that protective policy violates the constitution. President Washington and his associate founders of the government thought otherwise, for one of the earliest measures set in motion when Washington was first inaugurated recognized the desirability, and of course the legality, of a protective tariff. During the last fifteen years the business of the country has been conducted under a protective tariff as shaped by Republican administration during this period. Shall free trade take its place? The Democratic platform distinctly answers—yes. The election of a Democratic president and Congress in November will usher in free trade unless the platform of the Democratic party is repudiated in its first and foremost clause. In some quarters it is hinted that full free trade will be evaded, as during President Cleveland's second term, that nightmare of business depression. But no evasive party can be trusted. Its proper treatment is defeat.

That the business activities of the United States have been enormously developed in the last fifteen years is a matter of common knowledge. Every census bulletin is an example of the increase. Thus speaks protection for itself. Its record is an array of accomplished facts, not a theory with a string of promises attached. Look at the tens of thousands of factories in operation and the vastly enlarged industries of the last decade. Note that the foreign demand for American manufactured articles has mounted to more than a billion dollars, a fourfold gain in the last ten years. Is not this a matter for careful thought by the great army of men engaged in the myriad forms of manufacturing that have sprung up under the two Republican protective tariffs in force since 1897? There has been equally protection for the farms and the mines. Its story is in results. To forget it will be calamitous, as was proved in the last Democratic administration, which dabbled in and muddled with free trade of a halfway sort. There is a better way to learn than by bitter experience.

Gompers For Marshall.

The Indianapolis Star states that Samuel Gompers was consulted before Governor Marshall was nominated for vice president at Baltimore, and that he gave his approval. It has not been so very many moons since Mr. Gompers was loudly denouncing Governor Marshall for the granting of the McNamara requisitions, and since following that denunciation, Mr. Marshall apologized abjectly for his course in that matter, promising never to do it again. Mr. Gompers played a considerable part in the election of Governor Marshall the special friend of labor. Thousands of Indiana workmen could tell Mr. Gompers that he handed them a gold brick. Governor Marshall has done nothing to fulfill the pledges made in his behalf by Mr. Gompers. One of his last official acts was to appoint to the supreme bench of the state a man notorious for his antagonism to organized labor and its policies and measures. If any republican governor had made such an appointment Mr. Gompers would have long ago pronounced him unworthy of the votes of workmen. But as The Chronicle has previously pointed out, there is no more hide-bound partisan than Mr. Gompers. He would support the rankest anti-unionist in the United States if his name happened to appear under the rooster. He supported Parker and Cleveland with the same enthusiasm he gave to the support of Bryan, and which he now gives to the candidacy of Wilson, the severe critics of labor unions. Mr. Gompers will not be particularly useful to any candidate or party, however, until he gives a detailed account of the expenditures from the two million dollar McNamara defense fund raised from the wage earners of this country—a thing he has so far carefully declined to do.

Good Citizenship.

"What are some of the most important duties of a good citizen?" was a question asked of Harold Mason, a thirteen-year-old pupil in the sixth grade at the Alexander Taylor public school at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. His answer, which won the coveted promotion at the examination a few days ago, follows:
"A good citizen should never be for a man who is a 'graffer', because

Sam Sanderson Says:

That some people get more fun out of losing money betting on the election than they do out of that earned by a hard day's labor.

he will put all the money he can in his pocket, neglect his duties and not try to make the city prosper.

"He should vote against the liquor traffic and never touch it. He should never use profane language and he will always willingly help the poor and needy.

"He should vote toward paving streets and try to make his city a good place to live in. He should have good schools and send his children to them.

"He should try to stop the armies from having money to spend on ships of war, and not have war, but turn it over to cities and make them beautiful.

"Then there would be sewers, waterworks, telephones and electric lights all over the city.

"He should encourage the building of nice bungalows and fine hotels, have no tents, make the people clean up their yards and have lawns with beautiful flowers.

"When he found a man out of work he would try to get him a job, and then he would be what I call a real good citizen."

Marshall and Bryan.

An attempt was made to represent Colonel Bryan as favoring Governor Marshall for the vice-presidency, and as not being angry over his nomination for vice-president. The best answer to this talk is given in Col. Bryan's interview in Chicago on the Fourth of July.

"What are your views regarding the vice-presidency, and does your advocacy of Burke and Chamberlain indicate any difference with Governor Marshall?"

"Acting as a delegate and feeling as a delegate, I did what I could do to obtain a candidate for the vice-presidency who would add strength to the ticket.

"I favored Burke or Chamberlain for two reasons. First, because they live in a section where progressive Republicanism is strongest, and I thought that either one would give us several States in the northwest. Both are excellent men, and their records commend them.

"The second reason is that North Dakota and Oregon started with Wilson in his opposition to Parker for temporary chairman, and that was the turning point of the convention."

A Historic Murder.

The Herman Rosenthal murder case in New York City is attracting nation wide attention, because of the suggestion it offers of an alliance between members of the police force and organized crime.

The problem of keeping a loyal police force is harassing wherever the gambling fraternity can outbid the tax payers for the favor of the defenders of the law.

It is quite another matter to get a police force of athletic and handsome men, who will display a military carriage, answer questions courteously, and assiduously pilot women across the crowded streets.

It is quite another matter to get a police force who will impartially pursue gamblers and other powerful law breakers, when they are offered bribes several times in excess of their salaries.

This problem is not one confined to great cities. A policeman faces dangers greater than the blows of thugs and the bullets of thieves. Whether it comes in the form of promised money reward, or threat of loss of his job, there are probably few policemen anywhere who do not encounter corrupt solicitations. All honor to the host of square hearted defenders of the law, who would rather work loyally for the people than for the creatures that prey on society!

This country has made some progress since the foundation of the government. Everyone admits this, and the ones who are most impressed with the thought of this progress are those who have been the most thoroughgoing students. The more one investigates the question the more he is impressed with the thought that in the world of achievement the last decade has been a century. History records the last score of years as one of marvelous and incredible progress. This progress has been real; it has not been wholly imaginary. All business is conducted on a higher plane today than ever before in the history of the world, and the average man lives today on a much higher plane than ever before. This progress has been made with a decent regard for existing laws, for existing institutions and for existing constitutions. To assume that by the overthrow of all this the pace of progress is to be hastened in the least in to assume what is contrary to all human experience. Not to see that it is actual reaction in its most pernicious phase, is to be blind to the truth that ought to be clear to every one who will give the subject a second thought.

Some people are foolish enough to think that American farmers are going to be foolish enough to vote the Democratic ticket because Taft was for reciprocity with Canada. Why should they when the Democratic party is for free trade not only with Canada but all the world? The farmers know under what administration they get the best prices. They will vote the Republican ticket. Why, if a farmer did not want to do so his wife and children would talk him into it. The good wife knows how back in the Democratic tariff days of Cleveland, chickens sold at 10 and 15 cents apiece, cows at $10.00 and $15.00, horses from $25.00 to $60.00. Eggs and butter were a drug on the market, corn 12½ to 20 cents a bushel, wheat 45 to 60 cents, vegetables and apples had no market for the factory people were out of work and could not buy. No, the farmers wives are practically unanimous for a continuation of Republican national politics. They want to take no chances.

August Belmont thinks he put up $250,000 for the 1904 campaign, but is not quite sure. Probably he lumped the item under miscellaneous small sundries when he balanced up his cash for the month.

Why did Woodrow Wilson drop his first name "Thomas?" 'Tis an honorable one, borne not merely by the father of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson, but by the fathers of many useful cats.

The military maneuvers at New York will be the biggest theoretical conflicts ever pulled off in this country, but there won't be anything hypothetical about the conquests the chorus girls will make.

Editorialettes.

The hardest question of the campaign, as we get it, is whether h. c. of I. will come down long enough to hear what the spell binders are saying about it.

Looks are so deceptive, writes Clarabelle. Think how many are good and don't show.

New York man was fined ten dollars for crossing his legs in a street car. Strange some people will do these things when there are always some people's toes on which they can stand.

Women need not despair of matrimony. There's always a chance of marrying an undertaker and being an inspiration to him in his work.

There is a town in these parts that has a girl with a permanent complexion. It's possible.

Aviator Latham was killed by a buffalo in South Africa where there was no crowd to pay gate money to see it done.

Family skeletons also stalk in hobble skirts.

We could go to Connersville tomorrow, but somehow, we just don't seem to care to. You see, we were in Connersville once.

George Lockwood Suggests Planks For State Platform

(Marion Chronicle)

The Indiana republican state convention should declare:

For the emancipation of the state from the domination of the corrupt and corrupting special interests now in control of the legislative and administrative affairs of Indiana, and the immediate re-enactment of the county local option law.

For the revision of the state constitution by a constitutional convention elected by the people.

For the enfranchisement of women.

For a stringent law governing party primaries, caucuses and conventions, insuring to every voter the right to have his vote received and counted as cast, and eliminating the possibility of party government either by or in spite of contests.

For the strengthening of the corrupt practices act, and its legal application to special and local as well as general elections, with the same provision for publicity of campaign funds raised and expended by individuals and business organizations as now apply to political committees, and the same penalties for corrupt practices by such individuals and organizations as by candidates and officers of political committees.

For the revision of the state registration act, making it simpler and vastly less expensive in the rural districts, and providing for the registration of persons necessarily absent from the locality on registration dates.

For the vitalizing of the constitutional provision that the governor shall "see to it that the laws are executed" by making local officers who are legally shown to wilfully fail in law enforcement subject to removal by state executive authority.

For the suppression of the general traffic in narcotics.

For the selection of a Republican national committeeman to sit in the proceedings preliminary to the national convention of 1916 by the republican national delegates from Indiana prior to that convention.

For the state publication and consequent cheapening of text books used in the public schools.

For reform in the Indiana state and local system of taxation.

For an enabling act permitting the commission or business form of municipal government for all cities of 10,000 or more population which by vote decide to adopt it.

For the increased economy and efficiency of state government, the permanent extinction of the state debt and the establishment of the business affairs of Indiana upon a business basis without recourse to the bankrupt methods now in vogue.

For a central state institutional commission to supervise and control the financial affairs of the state institutional system, and formulate recommendations to the general assembly covering the needs of these institutions.

For the non-partisan control and management of state institutions.

For a legislative commission to analyze and publish the legal purport and effect of every bill introduced in the general assembly, and to revise the text in such a way as to ensure constitutionality, before action upon it is taken.

It is hardly necessary to add that the record of the republican party in national affairs, including the administrations of Roosevelt and Taft, should be endorsed.

Some good man who can stand up straight on such a platform should be nominated for governor (the woods are full of such men) and the state ticket should carry representation of all elements of the party in harmony with the vital features of the platform. With such a platform, and such candidates, and with such a campaign as Chairman Sims and his associates are able to conduct, tolerate and generous, aggressive and intelligent in its character, the Taggart democracy in the state of Indiana, with its reactionary platform and ticket, can be swept off the political map in November.

MAKES POPULACE LAUGH, MAN WRITES

What Richmond Newspapers Print About "Common Peepul" is Funny, Says Correspondent.

DECLARES LEEDS HAS "BARL"

A Richmond man who signs his name "G" contributes the following to the people's column of the Indianapolis News:

Rudolph Leeds, the "boy millionaire," editor of the Palladium, is one of the chief moguls in the Bull Moose outfit here. He is calling meetings in this end of the State, and trying to stir up the disgruntled in both parties. He appoints chairmen in the different towns, and considers himself the boss in this district. He has political ambitions, and as there was no change in the real Republican party is trying to get into something in the Bull Moose bunch. Leeds' principal attraction to the gang is the fact that he has a "barl" and as he has always been easy, they expect him to open it. As it comes easy, they will have no compunction in taking all they can get hold of. Richmond needs a newspaper very badly. The two sheets here are both so rabid on the third party movement that most of the people here would be glad to read a paper that would give them some of the news. Both of the publishers, Dudley Foulke of the Item as well as Leeds, are very wealthy, and what they print about the dear "common peepul," makes the populace laugh. They both get their incomes from money invested in the East.

WATSON PERSUADES TAFT TO MAKE VISIT

President Promises Rushville Man he Will Try to Attend Terre Haute Celebration This Fall.

TO BE NON-PARTISAN AFFAIR

Through the influence of James E. Watson of this city, President William Howard Taft has given his consent to speak at the non-partisan celebration during the week of September second, of the hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Ft. William Henry Harrison.

The formal invitation to attend this affair was extended to the President two weeks ago. He said at that time that he would not be able to attend, and gave as the reason his decision not to travel extensively during the coming campaign and not to make any political speeches.

The Terre Haute committee was not satisfied, and sent Mr. Finkelstein on for a second interview. In renewing the invitation Messrs Finkelstein and Watson explained that there was to be no politics whatever in the affair; that Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, was to be present and that other prominent men would be there. The President finally said he would do his best to be present.

EDITOR'S SKIRTS NOT BESMIRCHED

Robert Peelle of Lewisville Traveler is Freed of Charge of Public Intoxication.

HE SAYS IT'S SPITE WORK

Affidavit Filed by Father of Blaine Reynolds Who Has Disappeared Again.

Down in "bloody Breathitt" county, Kentucky, feuds, plans for revenge and avengers are as numerous as moonshine stills in the rocky caverns and wooded dells of the Appalachian range, says the Lewisville Road Traveler.

An echo of a try-to-get-even affair of nearly three years standing reached a climax in Lewisville yesterday in Squire Butler's court, when Editor Peelle of the Traveler, was charged with being intoxicated on December 26, 1910. Said charge was filed by one Wm. Reynolds, a hoary-headed old veteran of about seventy summers, known everywhere in the remotest corners of Franklin township as an inveterate checker player and goods box politician.

Prosecutor Evans and R. S. Hunter, Peelle's attorney of Newcastle, motored down to attend the trial. Four witnesses for Reynolds, Sam Smith, L. A. Wills, W. H. Lewis and Grace Johnson swore they had never seen Peelle intoxicated and remembered nothing about the charge as filed for December 26, 1910. Attorney Hunter first made a motion to quash the affidavit as it was not signed with the full name of the party filing same, but only bore the signature "Wm." which is contrary to law.

The charge was the outgrowth of five charges filed by Peelle against Blaine Reynolds, son of William Reynolds, who, over two years ago, attacked Peelle while crazy drunk and impersonated an officer. Three charges were filed against Reynolds at that time and he took to the tall timber for two years, returning here only last month supposing the officers could not push these charges on account of the two year limit being up. However, this was not the case, as the sheriff had never returned the warrants to the clerk of the court, thereby barring the statute of limitations.

It was the understanding that Reynolds would not be molested upon his return here if he bothered no one, but after a three weeks' visit to his native haunts the old story was to tell over again. One week ago last Sunday he began to fill up with the water that never freezes, and loaded with a brand of squirrel whiskey that would make the tamest tabby cat spit in a bull dog's face, he attacked Peelle, his old enemy, with a missile in one hand at the Wills drug store corner. No collusion occurred and he finally went home.

Peelle then filed two more charges against him, and the terror of southern Henry county forthwith disappeared. Seen in Indianapolis Tuesday of last week, Reynolds told Hawley Hall that he was going to New Mexico, the land of broad mesas and cañon plains, where the coyote roams and the natives doze to sleep in the plazas while the Spanish band plays La Polema.

Charles W. Stivers and Son Settle Differences Over the Political Policies of Liberty Herald.

PAPER WILL HAVE ONE VOICE

The divided house of Stivers, publishers of the Liberty Herald, has come together on a basis that will obviate conflicting opinions in the future. The Herald, in its issue this week, contains the following card:

An agreement has been reached by which the political attitude of the Liberty Herald in this campaign will be under control of Charles W. Stivers, the senior proprietor of the paper. To be brief, this means that the Herald will have but one voice politically and that in favor of the principles and policies of the national Republican party and its nominees. The junior proprietor of the Herald will give his attention to local editorial work and business management. C. W. Stivers & Son.

BRAKEMAN AVERTS WRECK

James Odle Flags Passenger Before it Reaches Broken Rail.

The quick action of James Odle, a Big Four brakeman, probably saved the lives of a number of people on the Big Four southbound passenger yesterday morning. Odle was riding the back end of his freight and noticed a broken rail about one mile south of Shirley. He stopped his train, ran back and flagged the passenger, which was only a few miles behind, just before it reached the damaged piece of track. He was rewarded with a number of liberal gifts by the passengers.

OBJECTS TO BULL MOOSE

A. W. Winship Thinks That Name Not Fit One For Party.

Augustus W. Winship objects to the third party being called the Bull Moose party, "for in any other improper manner." In a letter to the Indianapolis News he continues as follows: "The party is all right. It stands for the principles of Abraham Lincoln, and the new party is coming to stay. It will be a great party. Speak a good word for the new party. You will not lose your reward. I believe the new party will win this year."

SIXTH ANNUAL HOMECOMING

Andersonville Will Entertain Exiles August 15, 16 and 17.

The Andersonville Herald this week announces that the sixth annual home coming and chicken show will be held in Scott's grove, south of that place, August 15, 16, and 17. Among the amusements that have been contracted for is the Swartz merry-go-round, which was one of the attractions at the county fair last year. Prizes are to be awarded in the poultry departments and many prominent speakers will be heard.

TRIAL MONDAY NIGHT.

Elliott Palmer has filed suit in Squire Katzer's court against Alvan Clark alleging that Clark moved from his property, keeping the key and owing him $11 house rent. The case will be heard Monday night.

JAILED FOR A YEAR.

John Bricker, son of George Bricker, a former resident on the T. S. Nugen farm near Dunreith, was given a year in jail by Judge Bagon at Anderson for stealing paint brushes from a store and pawning them for money to buy liquor with. Bricker left his old home about 25 years ago.

LOSES SIGHT.

John T. Brooks, who was injured at the Greely Stone company's plant at St. Paul, several weeks ago by being struck on the head by a rock thrown from a large blast, has lost the sight of one eye and the sight of the other is badly affected. He has just returned from a trip to an Indianapolis eye specialist who gave him the information that he could not restore the sight.

"I thought there was no one here, you've hidden yourself in such a dark corner. I came to gather up my books and things."

He advanced into the light, looking somberly at her.

"It's true that you're going to-morrow," he said almost gruffly.

"Oh, yes, we're really going. Everything's been arranged. Horses and a sleigh are expected any moment now from Rocky Bar. They rest here all night and take us down in the afternoon. I think papa'd go crazy if we had to stay twenty-four hours longer."

"I'll follow in a day or two," he said, "probably go down on Tuesday, the doctor says."

She began gathering up the books, reading the titles, and putting aside those that were not hers.

"I'm so sorry it's over," she said in a preoccupied voice without any particular regret in it. "The Mill on the Floss" is Mrs. Perley's, I think."

"I'm sorry, too," he commented, very low.

She made no reply, selected another book, and as she held it up looking at the back, said:

"But it's not like a regular good-by. It's not as if you were going in one direction and we in another. We'll see you in San Francisco, of course."

"I don't think so," he answered.

She laid the book on the table and turned her face toward him. He stood looking into the fire, not seeing the face, but conscious of it, of its expression, of its every line.

"Do you mean that we're not going to see you down there at all?"

"Yes, that's just about what I meant," he replied.

"Mr. Ryan!" It was hardly more than a breath of protest, but it was as stirring to the man as the whisper of love.

He made no comment on it, and she said, with a little more of insistence and volume:

"But why?"

"It's best not," he answered, and turned toward her.

His shoulders were squared and he held his head as a man does who prepares himself for a blow. His eyes, looking straight into hers, enveloped her in a glance soft and burning, not a savage glance, but the enfolding, possessive glance, caressing and ardent, pleading and masterful, of a lover.

The books that she was holding fell to the table, and they looked at each other while the clock ticked.

"It's best for me not to come," he said huskily, "never to come."

"Very well," she faltered.

He came a little nearer to her and said:

"You know what I mean."

She turned away, very pale, her lips trembling.

"And you'd like me to come if I could—if I were free?"

He was close to her and looked down to see her face, his own hard, the bones of the jaw showing through

OLD-TIME REMEDY DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

For generations Sage and Sulphur have been used for hair and scalp troubles. Almost everyone knows the value of such a combination for keeping the hair a good even color, for curing dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, and for promoting the growth of the hair. Years ago the only way to get a Hair Tonic of this kind was to make it in the home, which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays, almost any up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully prepared in perfectly equipped laboratories.

An ideal preparation of this sort is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, in which Sage and Sulphur are combined with other valuable remedies for scalp troubles and thin, weak hair that is losing its color or coming out. After using this remedy for a few days, you will notice the color gradually coming back, your scalp will feel better, the dandruff will soon be gone, and in less than a month's time there will be a wonderful difference in your hair.

Don't neglect your hair if it is full of dandruff, losing its color or coming out. Get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Rushville Citizens Show the Way.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of serious kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that these ills can be cured. Read what a Rushville citizen says:

Mrs. W. A. Wylie, 824 North Arthur street, Rushville, Ind., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family and we have found them to be a splendid remedy for kidney complaint. A member of our family suffered from attacks of backache for several years, the trouble being caused by disordered kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to our attention and thinking they might prove of benefit, we procured a supply at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store. The use of two boxes entirely relieved the backache and strengthened the kidneys. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills at that time and I still take pleasure in saying a good word for them."

of broken periods of plenty with lean years in between. The Crown Point and Belcher rise made him a man of means, and its collapse was said to have ruined him. Afterward, wise acres shook their heads and there were rumors that it was not Bill Cannon who was ruined. In the dead period which followed this disastrous cataclysm of fortune and confidence, he was surreptitiously loyal to the capricious town from which men had withdrawn their affection and belief as from a beguiling woman, once loved and trusted, now finally proved false.

In those short years of mourning and lost faith between the downfall of Crown Point and the rise of Con Virginia and the Rey del Monte, Bill Cannon "lay low." His growing reputation as an expert mining man and a rising financier had suffered. Men had disbelieved in him as they did in Virginia, and he knew the sweetness of revenge when he and the great camp rose together in titanic partnership and defied them. His detractors had hardly done murmuring together over the significant fact that Crown Point "had not scooped every dollar he had" when the great ore body was struck on the thousand-foot level of the Rey del Monte, and Bill Cannon became a Bonanza King.

That was in seventy-four. The same year he bought the land in San Francisco and laid the foundation for the mansion on Nob Hill. His wife was still living then, and his son and daughter—the last of seven children, five of whom had died in infancy—were as yet babies. A year later the house was completed and the Cannon family, surrounded by an aura of high-colored, accumulating anecdote, moved down from Nevada and took possession.

Mrs. Cannon, who in her girlhood had been the prettiest waitress in the Yuba Hotel at Marysville, and had married Bill Cannon when he was an underground miner, was the subject of much gossip in the little group which at that time made up San Francisco's fashionable world. They laughed at her and went to her entertainments. They told stories of her small social mistakes, and fawned on her husband for positions for their sons. He understood them, treated them with an open, cynical contempt, and used them. He was big enough to realize his wife's superiority, and it amused him to punish them for their patronizing airs by savage impertinences that they winced under but did not dare resent. She was a silent, sensitive, loving woman, who never quite fitted into the frame his wealth had given her. She did her best to fill the new role, but it bewildered her and she did not feel at ease in it. In her heart she yearned for the days when her home had been a miner's cabin in the foot-hills, her babies had known no nurse but herself, and her husband had been all hers. Those were her beaux jours.

She died some twelve years after the installation in San Francisco. Bill Cannon had loved her after his fashion and always respected her, and the withdrawal of her quiet, sympathetic presence left a void behind it that astonished, almost averted him. The two children, Eugene and Rose, were eighteen and thirteen at the time. She had adored them, lived for them, been a mother at once tender and intelligent, and they mourned her with passion. It was to dull the ache left by her death, that Gene, a weak and characterless changeling in this vigorous breed, sought solace in drink. And it was then that Rose, assuming her mother's place as head of the establishment, began to show that capacity for management, that combination of executive power and gentle force—bequests from both parents—that added admiration to the idolizing love the Bonanza King had always given her.

The house in which this pampered princess ruled was one of those enormous structures which a wealth that sought extravagant ways of expending itself reared upon that protuberance in the city's outline called by San Francisco Nob Hill. The suddenly-enriched miners of the Comstock Lode and the magnates of the railway had money waiting for investment, and the building of huge houses seemed as good a one as any other.

Here, from their front steps, they could see the city sweeping up from its low center on to the slopes of girdling hills. It was a gray city, crowding down to the edge of the bay, which, viewed from this height, extended far up into the sky. In summer, under an arch of remote, cold blue, it looked a bleak, unfriendly place, a town in which the stranger felt a depressing, nostalgic chill. In winter, when the sun shone warm and tender as a caress, and the bay and hills were like a mosaic in blue and purple gems, it was a panorama over which the passer-by was wont to linger. The copings of walls offered a convenient resting place, and he could lean on them, still as a lizard in the bath of sun.

Bill Cannon's house had unbroken command of this view. It fronted on it in irregular, massive majesty, with something in its commanding bulkiness that reminded one of its owner. It was of that epoch when men built their dwellings of wood; and numerous bay-windows and a sweep of marble steps flanked by sleeping stone manner of fond gratification in marked contrast to her father's roughness, "that's the best news I've heard for a year. It's worth being snowed up to hear that when you come out. Of course you'll get the ranch. I always knew you would. Always knew you could pull up and be as straight as anybody if you tried."

The old man, who had been kicking off his rubbers, here raised his head with a bull-like movement, and suddenly roared at the retreating butler, who was vanishing toward the dining-room.

"My cigars. Where in hell are they? Why doesn't somebody attend here?"

The servant, with a start of alarm and a murmured excuse, disappeared for a moment, to reappear, hurrying breathlessly with a box of cigars. Cannon selected one and turned to the study.

"How long are you down far?" he said to his son as he began ascending.

"I thought a week, perhaps two," answered the young man. "A feller gets darned lonely, down there in the country."

There was something apologetic, almost pleading in his words and way of speech. He looked after his father's receding figure as if quite oblivious to the rudeness of the large, retreating back and the manner of careless scorn.

"Make it three," said the Bonanza King, turning his head slightly and throwing the sentence over his shoulder.

Gene Cannon was now twenty-nine years of age and had drunk since his eighteenth year. His mother had died in ignorance of his vice. When his father discovered it, it simply augmented the old man's impatience against the feeble youth who would carry on his name and be one of the inheritors of his fortune. Bill Cannon had never cared much for his only son. He had early seen the stuff of which the boy was made. "Doesn't amount to a hill of beans," he would say, throwing the words at his wife over the bitten end of his cigar. He could have forgiven the drinking, as he could other vices, if Gene had had some of his own force, some of that driving power which had carried him triumphant over friend and foe. But the boy had no initiative, no brains, no energy. "How did I ever come to have such a son?" he queried sometimes in an access of disgust in which the surprise was stronger than the disgust. The question possessed a sort of scientific interest for him which was deeper than the personal and over which the disappointed magnate would ponder.

As Gene grew older and his intemperance assumed more serious proportions, the father's scorn grew more open and was augmented by a sort of exasperated dislike. The Bonanza King had no patience with those who failed from ill-health or the persistent persecutions of bad luck. His contention was that they should not have been ill, and they should have conquered their bad luck. He had not excuses for those who were beaten back against the wall—only death should be able to do that. But when it came to a useless, hampering vice, a weakness that in itself was harmless enough, but that was allowed to gain paralyzing proportions, his original contempt was intensified into a fierce intolerance which would have been terrifying if it had not been tempered with an indifferent disdain.

The Newsboy Cripple

"Cheese it, fellers, cheese it! The cop!"

There was a scurrying of feet and a confusion of grimy hands in the struggle to recover the dice and pennies scattered within the snug circle of excited newsboys gathered far up D—lane enjoying, apparently heedless of consequences, a midday game of much-forbidden "crap."

In the wild scramble to save their "gambling implements" and nevertheless escape the bluecoated official striding upon them, nobody thought of poor Billy. But, with his papers under one arm, his crutch resting beneath the other and an empty trousers leg dangling in the breeze, Billy, with his companions, sought self-preservation.

D—lane, for the surefooted was none too good walking, and a treacherous spot found Billy in his misfortune and brought him heavily to the ground, his papers in an untidy pile beside him and the crutch quite beyond his reach.

The corners of his mouth drooped ever so little as he looked up from his uncomfortable position and beheld the officer towering above him.

"Well, my lad, you seem to be the one to go along with me. All the rest have made good to get out of the way. I'm mighty sorry I've got to take you—one of the others would have suited me better—much better. But the sergeant detailed me especially to stop this crap shooting. He says it can't go on."

The policeman spoke not unkindly, but Billy, from his seat of earth, heard, and knew that a plea for release would be wasted.

"Here's your crutch, my boy. Come on."

"Aw, let him off, can't yer?"

Billy and the policeman wheeled about at this unexpected interference from the rear. There, crawling from beneath an empty barrel set forth by one of the many restaurants along the lane, his face and hair generously streaked with a covering of flour taken on in his place of refuge, came a boy not much larger than Billy himself—one of the circle of former "crap shooters."

"I say, Billy ain't done nothin'. He warn't shootin' with the bunch. The last I see of Billy he was settin' there eatin' his handout. Weren't you, Billy?" Billy nodded complacently. "Yer pinchin', a 'nacent man, boss; straight goods."

"Now," the boy went on pushing his hands deep into his pockets and broadening his base, "now, I'm one of the bunch. I've got a pull with the gang, if I do say it myself, and it—if you—could only let Billy off—'cause he ain't done nothin' anyhow—I'll use my 'nfloence with the crowd to stop the shootin'—after—I—get—out—of the lockup."

For an instant a gleam of merriment beamed in the officer's eyes, and it was with difficulty that he restrained a burst of genuine laughter.

"But I can't do that for you; I can't let either of you off," he said, at last. "You know right from wrong and—ah, here comes the sergeant—we'll let him settle it."

Billy shrank closer to his champion as he felt his own tiny atom of self completely overshadowed by this formidable giant with shining buttons and chevrons. The contact lent the intercessor strength for a final appeal.

"Sergeant, can I speak to you for Billy? I don't mind for myself, but Billy just can't go to the lockup."

Nervously the child's fingers locked and interlocked, but his gaze met that of the stalwart officer of the law unflinchingly. Breathlessly, he rushed on.

"Billy's mother is home sick in bed. She's what you call an invalid. Sometimes she can work and help out and sometimes Billy's got to do it all himself 'cause he ain't got no brothers nor sisters, nor no father—just his mother. So we fellers found him a good stand up in the square, but he can't run after trade since he's lost his leg. Some swell guy run over him with his auto and never stopped to say howdy or good-by, and Billy's been up against it ever since and—shall I tell it, Billy, 'bout singin' the dice?" Billy hesitated. "Shall I, Billy? It's up to you."

Billy tried to grasp the significance of this sudden bestowal of responsibility and bowed a bewildered approval.

"Well, then, 'bout this game o' crap, sergeant." The boy lowered his eyes and poked the dirt with the toe of his muddy boot.

"About this game of crap—Billy's business hasn't been rushing lately, and so we rather planned to give him a boost with a crap game noontime, till his ma got better. Some o' the crowd got more'n you'd think out of their papers and they have a pocketful left for themselves. So they put a good bit of it up in a game o' crap for Billy, just to boost him along. That's what we was doin' today, sergeant, but we got pinched. If you could only let Billy off—if you—"

"That will do, my boy." The sergeant's voice was very gentle. "You tell the rest of the boys they must never throw dice again, never. Tell them to 'boost' Billy some other way. Now, get your papers and head home."

DR. NISWONGER
APPEALS CASE

Has Asked Court to Restore His License.

MEANS A TEST OF THE LAW

Not Satisfied With Recent Action of State Board of Medical Examination and Registration, Which Revoked His License For Illegal Sale of Cocaine, Ft. Wayne Physician Endeavors to Have License Restored.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 20.—An appeal has been taken by Dr. Henry W. Niswonger of this city, whose license as a physician was recently revoked by the state board of medical examination and registration on account of the alleged illegal sale of cocaine. He will make an effort to have his license restored. Niswonger's appeal was filed in the superior court.

PLEAD GUILTY BY MAIL

Prisoners Who Escaped Ask to Be Fined at Long Range.

Richmond, Ind., July 20.—Correspondence schools teach most of the trades and professions, and even banking is carried on by correspondence, but it has remained for the police court of Richmond, presided over by Mayor Zimmerman, to carry on a session by mail. George East and James Taylor were arrested for public intoxication. They escaped from the city jail and their whereabouts was a mystery. When arrested East had $14.95 and Taylor $22.55, and the money was deposited in the department safe.

Superintendent Gorman of the police department received a letter dated Paris, Ill., and signed by both East and Taylor. They requested that pleas of guilty to the charges of drunkenness be entered for each and that after their fines had been paid the balance be forwarded to them at Paris. The letter was read to the mayor in police court. He accepted the pleas of guilty "by mail."

"I had intended fining these men but $1 and costs," said the mayor, "but since they made their escape and we have the money, I will give each of them $5 and costs." This used all of East's money and left Taylor a balance of $7.35, which was mailed him at Paris.

FOUND NO TRAIL

Bloodhounds Failed in Attempt to Run Down Bank Robbers.

Raub, Ind., July 20.—An attempt was made to rob the Raub state bank, but the burglars were frightened away. The plate glass window of the bank was smashed, and it is believed the noise made by the falling glass led the burglars to believe the citizens would be awakened and that they fled. No clue was left. Bloodhounds attempted to trace the burglars, but did not find them.

Unable to Give Bond.

Mt. Vernon, Ind., July 20.—Howard Peerman, a rural route mail carrier of this city, was arrested for forging notes aggregating several hundred dollars. The charges were filed by local banks. Peerman is accused of forging the name of his father-in-law, a wealthy retired farmer, to the notes. At a preliminary hearing he was bound over to the circuit court. Peerman was unable to give bond.

Free Employment Bureau.

Indianapolis, July 20.—The eleventh quarterly report of the state free employment bureau, operated by the state statistician, shows that for the quarter ending June 30, 1,611 persons got employment. A total of 1,844 applied for work. Two thousand three hundred and sixty positions were reported to the board to be filled. Of the total persons getting work, sixty-eight were women and girls.

Skull Split Bullet.

Shelbyville, Ind., July 20.—Surgeons in examining the bullet wound in the head of Ernest Strickler, who shot himself several days ago, found that the bullet had split and one-third of it did not enter his skull. Part of the bullet was found beneath the skin near the left temple. The rest of the bullet is believed to have gone almost through the brain. It is believed Strickler will recover.

Getting Ready For Meeting.

Indianapolis, July 20.—The headquarters which will be in charge of arrangements for the national conservation congress, which meets in this city in October, has been opened. James C. Gipe of Clarks, La., recording secretary of the congress, is in charge of the headquarters, and will be assisted by Thomas R. Shipp, executive secretary of the organization.

Killed When Auto Overturned.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 20.—Augustus Q. LeTeller, cashier of a distilling company, was killed when his automobile turned over at the edge of the city. The automobile skidded when it struck the soft earth where a sewer had been dug.

THE ARCHBALD CASE
NOW BEFORE SENATE

Further Time Given for Pleadings in Defense.

Washington, July 20.—On the articles of impeachment presented against him by the house, Judge Robert W. Archbald of the United States commerce court was formally arraigned in the senate. The judge, accompanied by his counsel, R. W. Archbald, Jr., a son, and A. S. Worthington, appeared and entered a plea of not guilty and asked time in which to answer. The time for the answer was extended until July 29, and further time will be given for a replication and for further pleadings by the defense, but under an order entered by the senate the pleadings in the case must be closed by August 2. Senator Bailey indicated clearly that a fight will be made to conclude the trial before adjournment of the session.

TURKS HOLD ON

Italian Attempt to Force the Dardanelles Was Repulsed.

London, July 20.—The attempt of the Italian torpedo boats to force the Dardanelles under cover of darkness resulted in complete failure. Reports vary as to the number of torpedo boats engaged. One report says that there were five, while another says eight participated.

The torpedo vessels had not gone far when the searchlights from the forts revealed their presence. A furious cannonade immediately began and the flotilla quickly turned and fled at full speed back toward the Aegean sea.

One account says that two of the boats were sent to the bottom with all on board. Another account says the torpedo boats were badly damaged.

The Turkish government, as a result of this latest attempt to force the straits, has notified the powers that the Dardanelles have been again closed to the shipping of the world.

Decrease in Death Rate.

Indianapolis, July 20.—The report of the state board of health for June shows that the death rate for the state was 10.5 to the 1,000 population, as compared with 19.6 for the corresponding month last year.

HAY FEVERITES ARE ALREADY SNIFFLING

Annual Sufferers Are Beginning to Wheeze Ahead of Schedule and no Explanation is Offered.

NUMBER WILL GO TO THE LAKES

This vicinity, like every other in this climate, has its full quota of hay fever victims. Every summer, but usually late in the summer, the dust from the weeds arises and assails the nostrils of these sufferers, bringing on an irritation which is nearly maddening to them. Many who can seek the lake regions to avoid the suffering from this cause. Others weather the dust storm, as it were, and await till the coming frost, which puts an end to their distress.

For some unexplained reason, the dust this season has begun to fly several weeks earlier than usual. Hay fever patients are suffering now, and the prospect of a long siege of sneezing and snuffling before the healing frosts descend is not a very cheerful one to them.

Hay fever is rather peculiar, as well as a most distressing disease. It seldom, if ever, kills anyone. The specific cause is frequently the dust of some particular weed, while the dust from other weeds does the patient no harm. All this is according to physicians who have given special attention to this ailment. They further say that there is no actual cure for hay fever, but that avoidance of the poisoning weed-power as far as possible, will always offer some relief, while the ordinary treatments for a cold in the head, which hay fever strongly resembles in all its stages, may do some good.

CONNERSVILLE RENEWS HOPE

Proposed Traction Terminal Merger in Cincinnati Will Help I. & C., it is Argued.

WILL HELP LIBERTY ROUTE

Ohio Electric Deeply Interested in Getting Down Into Heart of City.

"Find me a way of getting into the center of Cincinnati and I am ready to talk of building my line this way," was the substance of a statement made by Charles L. Henry to the members of the Hamilton Board of Trade some months ago. Another traction line, owned or managed by the Ohio Electric company and with which negotiation is said to have been pending for joint use of track from Hamilton south, lacked the facilities which Mr. Henry coveted—it ran to Cincinnati but not down into the business district, says the Connorsville News. Developments are now on foot that may solve the problem and have an important bearing in causing the I. & C. traction company to be extended from this city to Hamilton. The Hamilton Journal gives the following:

"It is reported in Cincinnati that there is to be a merger of all traction lines entering that city for the purpose of utilizing the proposed union terminal.

"The Cincinnati, Dayton & Toledo Traction Company, which is included in the prospective arrangement, is under lease to the Ohio Electric Railway company, and the question at once arises where does this company enter this deal for the advancement of the interests of Cincinnati? "The fact is concealed that the Ohio Electric Railway company is vitally interested. In fact, for five or six years it has been fighting to gain entrance to the heart of Cincinnati, but for some occult reason it has been unable to do so; but its ears have been compelled to stop far out in Colerain avenue and an extra fare and extra time were necessary for a passenger to reach the heart of the city."

If it be true that Mr. Henry hoped to gain entrance to Cincinnati jointly with this company, the fact of the latter failed for so long may have led the I. & C. company to contemplate some other route. Now that there is a prospect of getting the long-sought privilege of entry, negotiations, if not already on the way may be renewed and the I. & C. line extended to Hamilton.

Lycenm Bureau offers. Besides being engaged in Boy Scout work in Chicago for a number of years he has done the same thing which he will do here.

Rushville boys heard something of Boy Scout work during the local Men and Religion Forward campaign last winter when an illustrated lecture of the work was given. The impetus given the movement at that resulted in the formation of two Boy Scout councils here. They are live wide awake organizations and will take an active interest in the work of the scout commissioner.

W. E. Hopkins is busy all during the summer months with just such work as he will do here. He was at the Huntington chautauqua, which closed Wednesday evening and from there went to Lansing, Mich. Some idea of the good he will do here may be gleaned from a brief sketch from the Huntington Herald of the work he accomplished there:

About forty lads lined upon the stage under the direction of Scoutmaster Hopkins. Then they went through a program which brought out things which he had taught them in the week he had spent with them. First, demonstrations of the use of the Morse and Myer codes in wigwagging were given by the boys. Mr. Hopkins then explained the bandages which are used by the scouts, the same as are used by the Red Cross society. He then started the boys on their hospital squad expedition. About fifteen different bandages were made in short order. The boys then removed the bandages from their patients explaining how they were applied.

One of the most interesting stunts was the construction of a litter by three boys. They used two poles and their coats and belts. The litter was made and a disabled friend was lifted, placed on the litter and carried across the platform in just one minute and a half. Mr. Hopkins declared this to be a fine record considering the fact that they had learned the art but a few days ago. Examples in the resuscitation of drowned persons were given. Mr. Hopkins then showed how to tie a horse to a hole in the ground after which several lads started on the task of making a fire without matches. They managed to produce smoke but at critical points the machinery would go wrong. Nevertheless, the method was well illustrated.
